Doing

1. Arrange to visit with one of the deacons from your church for an interview. Ask if it is permissible to obtain a copy of your church’s current financial budget. In your interview ask him these questions and write down the questions and answers.

a. As a deacon in our church, what work does your job involve?

b. Why should we give money to missions, poor people etc., through the local church? Why not just give our money directly to the various agencies and organisations as we sense their needs?

.....

c. Why do we need deacons, or church officials, to do the work that you do? Couldn’t it be done by individuals?

.....

d. Go over the church budget with the deacon and determine:

- 1. What percentage of our budget is used in helping the poor? Do we differentiate between helping the poor of our congregation and the poor of our community?
- 2. What percentage of our budget is used in missions?
- 3. What percentage of our budget is used on church programs?
- 4. What percentage of our budget is used on our own building and property?
- 5. What do these percentages tell you about your church’s priorities?

e. Discuss with the deacon: Is there anything that you or he can think should be changed, as far as the church’s giving is concerned?

2. Giving should be a habit. A good habit. One that brings cheer to the giver. Begin a program of regular giving to your church. Decide how much you want to give to God, paying it out of your allowance, your savings, or whatever income you might have. As the Scriptures say, This giving may be done in secret. Only you and God need to know the facts.

Continue your giving for three weeks. When you have completed the three weeks of regular giving, sign the following statement below:

‘I have begun a program of regular giving in support of my church and have kept it up faithfully for at least three weeks.’

signed.....

Continue the good habit you have started and look for God’s blessings as promised in Malachi 3:10 - 11.
